Bespoke fixed sash window and timber entrance door

No 2 is a Georgian property that is around 260 years old, the customer required an old single glazed sliding sash window replacing and through a local installer chose a bespoke double glazed West Port window with traditional style arched astragals.

Following the replacement of the large window the customer approached West Port to manufacture a front entrance door for the property, their primary consideration was to opt for a traditional style door sensitive to the period of construction, other considerations by the customer were also thermal performance and price. West Port manufactured the front door which included fitting ironmongery chosen by the customer, a complete doorset was provided ready to be installed.

The customer felt that West Port's products and service met their expectations saying:

'Very positive experience, good customer service, quick to reply, generally very happy with West Port. Our new door has enhanced the aesthetic of the house, a great improvement on the PVCu door that was there before. Our large staircase window was an immediate improvement in thermal performance compared to the old sliding sash which was single glazed and draughty.'
